

Franchise Mobile x NBA 2K Response Templates

Ready-to-use language for accepted connections, referrals, meeting requests, demo access, technical questions, licensing questions, and follow-up.

Franchise Mobile keeps the league connected. NBA 2K remains where basketball is played.

Prepared for a private product and technical evaluation with Take-Two Interactive, 2K, and Visual Concepts.

Non-confidential presentation layer. No source code, credentials, private formulas, raw datasets, or repository access included.

First responses

Connection accepted

Thanks for connecting. I built Franchise Mobile as a persistent social and front-office companion concept for NBA 2K MyNBA and MyGM. It keeps league management, community, trades, scheduling, and preparation active away from console or PC. I would value the chance to share a concise non-confidential overview and learn who on the NBA 2K product team would be best suited to evaluate it.

They ask for more information

Thank you for the interest. I can send a one-page non-confidential overview first. The concept positions NBA 2K as the authoritative playable experience while Franchise Mobile extends the same league through mobile management, social coordination, commissioner tools, and game preparation. If the direction is relevant, I would welcome a short product and technical evaluation call.

They offer a referral

I appreciate the referral. An introduction to the NBA 2K product, MyNBA/MyGM, online services, mobile, or Visual Concepts team would be ideal. I can provide a short non-confidential overview for context and will keep the initial request focused on product fit and technical feasibility.

They request a meeting

Thank you. I would be glad to walk through the concept. I can keep the meeting to 20-30 minutes: the product problem, a ten-minute guided prototype demonstration, the proposed NBA 2K integration loop, and a focused discussion of next-step feasibility. Please let me know the preferred time and attendees.

Protected evaluation responses

They request demo access

I can provide a time-limited viewer account in an isolated demo environment. The viewer experience is read-only and uses seeded sample data; it does not expose production data, source code, credentials, private formulas, or administrator controls. Please send the recipient's business email and intended review window so I can prepare access.

They ask a technical integration question

The working app is currently a standalone prototype. The console/mobile synchronization layer is the proposed integration and would need to be defined with 2K and Visual Concepts. My recommended next step is a controlled technical discovery session covering account linking, authoritative state, permissions, events, conflict resolution, and sandbox access.

They ask about licensing

The prototype is being presented as a strategic integration proposal. I am not claiming an existing NBA, NBPA, 2K, or Take-Two license or affiliation. Licensed content, official data, commercial rights, and brand use would be addressed through the appropriate partnership and legal process if the product evaluation advances.

They ask for source code or formulas

I can provide architecture, product behavior, security boundaries, and a controlled technical walkthrough at this stage. Source code, simulation formulas, CPU decision weights, raw player datasets, and credentials are reserved for an approved diligence process with the appropriate protections and scope.

They request an NDA

I am open to reviewing an NDA through counsel before sharing protected implementation material. The current teaser, deck, and guided prototype are intentionally non-confidential and can be evaluated first while the appropriate diligence path is established.

Follow-up cadence

Within 24 hours after a meeting

- Thank every attendee by name and restate the product thesis in one sentence.
- List the specific questions or requested materials and identify which are safe to send now.
- Confirm the internal owner, next evaluation step, and a proposed follow-up date.
- Do not attach the full private package unless its recipients and purpose are confirmed.

Five-business-day follow-up

I wanted to follow up on Franchise Mobile and the proposed NBA 2K MyNBA/MyGM companion. The clearest next step would be a focused product and technical evaluation of the mobile-to-console league loop. I am happy to provide the one-page overview, guided demo, or a protected viewer session to the appropriate team. Please let me know who should own the next conversation.

Send the smallest useful artifact first. Expand access only when the recipient, purpose, and next step are confirmed.